

The Wait

We tend to see all miracles as “instant” events. We expect miracles to be instant!

Then, when God does not perform within our split-second timeframe, we are disappointed and often frustrated with The Divine.

Often, however, the miracle is already there, and God is waiting on us (!!!) to see how long it will take us to notice the miraculous intervention.

For example, the burning bush in Exodus 3:2-4, burning bushes are common in desert areas of extremely high and very low humidity. Nothing new there!

Obviously, God’s presence was already in the bush when the seemingly “ordinary” combustion started! So the miracle was in full course of performance even BEFORE Moses noticed the unusualness of the event.

How long did it take for Moses to notice the “unburning” of the burning bush? And even after he noticed the unusual phenomenon, how long did it take Moses to decide that there truly was something uncommon happening? And how long did it take for Moses to accept the extraordinary event as a “miracle”?

ONLY THEN did the Lord speak from within the bush!

ONLY AFTER you acknowledge the miracle as a true miracle will God conclude and confirm the miracle!

Start RIGHT NOW, confirming the small signs of God’s performance in action so that your miracle can be confirmed!

Finally, in closing, I wonder if the unconsumed burning bush is still living and blooming in some desert of Egypt? After all, God’s miracles are always permanent in their purpose!
